History in the Senate-Interesting rd of Votes-The Patron's Charges

Against Reporters, Etc. Washington, March 21.—There are some facts in connection with the Biair bill that may be interesting to note in addition to the points included in last night's correspondence. The bill has been four times before the Senate and was passed three times before it met with deteat in that body yesterday.

on the measure was taken April 6, 1884, and was as follows:

Yas.—Blair, Brown, Call, Cameren of Wisconsin, Colquitt, Conger of Michigan, Cullium, Dawes, Delph, Edmunds, Frye, Garland of Arlansa, George, Hampton, Barrison (now Freshent) fibe United States), Hoar, Jackson of Tennessee, Jonas of Louistans, Jones of Florida, Kenna, Logan of Illineis, McMillan of Minnesota, Manderson, Miller of New York, Morrit, Pire of New Hampshire, Flatt, Pugh, Ransom, Riddleberger, Sawyer, Williams, of California, Wilson of Iowa—33.

NAYR—Bayard of Delaware, Butler, Coke, Groome of Maryland, Harria, Hawley, Maxey of Texas, Miller of California, Morgan, Pendieton of Ohio, Salisbury of Delaware—11.

The pairs on that yote were as follows

The pairs on that vote were as follows (those first named being for the bill, and those second named against the measure: Aliison with Cockrell, Gibson with Beck, Camden of West Virginia with Ingalls, Farley of California with Lapham of New York, Hale of Maine with Mitchell of Pennsylvania, Lamar of Mississippi with McPherson of New Jersey, Vance of North Carolina with Plumb of Kansas, Voorhees with Vest, Walker of Arkansas with Slater of Oregon, Palmer of Michigan with Sabin of Minnesota, Aldrich with Gorman.

On that vote thirty-two senators were absent and eight or ten were not paired.

Mahone of Virginia was then misrepresenting the State of Virginia in that august body, and he dodged on the Blair bill. He was in the cloak-room when the vote was being taken, and did not come out until the business was over. He did not take the business was over. He did not take the trouble to even arrange a pair. He was really opposed to the bill, but was too great a coward to put himself squarely on record. He sneaked out of it, as the Record shows, although Virginia Republicans afterwards had the unblushing effrontery to charge that the Democrats of the State were opposed to the Blair bill, when their Boss, who had whipped them into supporting his political schemes and compelled them to wear his collar, had dodged the yots on the measure.

The second vote on the bill was taken March 4, 1886, and was as follows:

On the above vote Mahone slipped in under the tent, but it was too late to wipe out his previous record. Mr. Butler, who then opposed the bill and was paired with General Hampton, voted for the bill yesterday, the South Carolina Legislature having since then given its senators instructions. Mr. Butler is personally opposed to the proposition. THE THIED VOTE

THURSDAY'S VOTE.

As it may be convenient as a matter of reference, it is well to add the vote of yesterday, so that persons who may wish to preserve the record of the bill in its course through the Senate will have all the votes complete. It was as follows:

NOTED AGAINST BUSYLE. VOTED AGAINST HIMSELF.

It must be stated that Mr. Blair, the author of the bill, changed his vote from the affirmative to the negative to enable him to enter a motion to reconsider, but in doing so he swelled the majority against his own bill.

Senators Butler, Vance, Paddock, Casey, Gibson, Brown, and Call, who were for the bill, were paired with Senators Quay, Mc-Pherson, Eustis, Ransom, Washburn, Beck, and Cameron, who were announced as being opposed, CHANGE OF OPINION.

CHANGE OF OFINION.

A careful study of the above votes will show what a remarkable change there has been in six years in sentiment regarding the proposition to extend national aid to the common-school system of the country. Senators Quay and Sherman, two of the leading Republicans, supported the bill in 1888 and yesterday they wheeled around and were against it. All of the new senators from the recently-admitted States except Mr. Pierce, of North Dakota, voted for the bill, and strong pressure was brought to bear on him. Mr. Pierce is a journalist by profession, having been before his appointment as Governor of Dakota by President Arthur in 1884 managing editor of both the Chicago Inter-Ocean and the Chicago News. the Chicago News.

Mr. Blair has abused the newspaper calling unmereifully this session because too little space was given, as he claimed, to the debate on his bill. He even charged that every paper had on its staff a Jesuit, and that was why the bill was not more popular in the newspaper offices. It was certainly a silly and unwarranted assertion, besides being an uncalled-for fling at the Catholic religion. "The Jesuitical press," as he terms it, or at least the papers opposed to Mr. Blair's bill, will now have a good deal of fun in commenting on the defeat of the measure and the feelings of the author of the bill. If they are severe on Mr. Blair it is no more than he could have expected, as he talked his bill to death, and made himself generally disagreeable even to many who carnestly favored his scheme. Several of the senators who were for his bill warned him months ago that he was too arrogant in his demeanor.

THE NEXT MOVE. The friends of the bill have hardly had time yet to decide upon their next move. They have not abandoned all hope, but it will probably be some days before Mr. Blair asks for a vote on his motion to reconsider. It is, of course, possible that he can muster votes enough to reconsider in the Senate, but if he cannot that ends the bill for this Congress, as it would be useless for the House to attempt its passage.

GENERAL GEORGE CROOK DEAD.

He Suddenly Passes Away from Heart Failure.

CHICAGO, March 21, — Major-General George Crook, United States army, in command of the Department of Missouri, died at the Grand Pacific Hotel at 7-15 o'clock this morning of heart-disease. There had not been the slightest warning that General Crook was not perfectly well. He was at Army Headquarters all day yesterday, and last night at the hotel appeared to be in his usual good health. He got up as usual this morning about 7 o'clock, and while dressing he suddenly said to his wife, "I can't breathe." Mrs. Crook helped him to a sofa and a doctor was at once summoned, but before he could reach the room General Crook was tead. The General has been in command (By telegraph to the Dispatch.)

of the Department of Missouri for several years, sneceeding General Schofield,
Mr. John S. Drake, proprietor of the Grand Pacific Hotel, an intimate friend of General Crook, made the following statement to the Associated Press reporter:
"General Crook arose shortly before 7 o'clock this morning apparently in his usual health, and in accordance with his custom, began exercising with weights and pulleys which he kept in his room. After exercising for a few munutes he stopped and lay down upon the lounge saying that he felt a difficulty in breathing. A few moments later he called out to his wife "Oh, Mary, Mary, I need some help; I can't get my breath." Assistance was at once summoned and Dr. Hulbut, who lives near by, was sent for. Everything that could be done was done, but he failed to rally and died at 7:15 o'clock. Mrs. Crook and sister, Mrs. Reid, were the only members of the family present at his bed-side when he passed away. He had no children. I suppose his death resulted from an affection of the heart. For some weeks, in fact ever since he returned from his last trip to the Northwest, he has been complaining of a bearing down sensation in the neighborhood of the heart."

"Dr. V. T. Hurlburt, the physician who was summoned, said: I arrived at General Crook's bedside only a few minutes before death supervened. He was suffering from irregular action of the heart and his lungs or the chest seemed to be filled up. We did what we could for him in the way of hot applications. We put hot bags to his feet, etc., but it was of no use, and he died without rallying. It appeared to be a case of heart failure, but I could not be positive about that as I had never been called to attend him before. There may have been some stomachic complications."

of near times but as I had never been called to attend him before. There may have been some stomachic compileations."
Major Randall, of General Crook's staff, said: "We have noticed for some time that General Crook was not in his usual health. He was a man who never complained and said very little about his sufferings. At the Theatre last night I saw that he was not feeling at all well and asked him if he were in pain. He said "No," but I think that was the beginning of the end."

The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made. General Schofield has been telegraphed to in regard to the matter and his wishes will be considered. The burial will probably be at Oakland, Md., the home of his wife's family, though possibly at the Arlington National cemetery.

WARRINGTON, D. C., March 21, 1890. Senute.

Mr. Ransom, referring to yesterday's vote on the Blair bill, said that there had been some confusion about it; that he should have been paired as in favor of the bill, and that Mr. Casey (with whom he was paired) was opposed to the bill.

Mr. Plumb, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported back the House iont resolution authorizing the appointment of thirty medical examiners for the Bureau of Pensions, and gave notice that he would ask the Senate to consider it tomorrow.

Mr. Cockrell said that the report was by more means unanimous, and gave notice that he would move to amend the joint resolution by striking out the clause allowing the examination to be within the discretion and under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior, leaving the appointments under the civil-service law, to which the Republican party stood solemnly pledged. On motion of Mr. Sherman the bill to declare unlawful trusts and combinations in restraint of trade and production was taken up for consideration.

The substitute reported by Mr. Sherman, from the Finance Committee, on the 18th instant was read; also an amendment that was offered by Mr. Reagan.

Mr. Sherman addressed the Senate, reading his argument from manuscript. He declared that the bill did not interfere with any lawful business, It dealt only with unlawful combinations, such combinations as were unauthorized by any law of any civilized nation, ancient or modern, and whose sole object was to control prices the Windle (Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, in the chair) on the pension appropriation of the States jurisdiction in cases where the lead and manufactures where the leaving to the States jurisdiction in cases where the lead and manufactures where the leaving to the States jurisdiction in cases where the lead and manufactures where the leave affected.

The Senate had been told a last session by Mr. Sherman that whenever here was satisfied that combinations were protected by high protective duty, he would be in favor of reducing that duty, and that, Mr. Vest sand, was the real remedy, Any other remedy (without an amend, and that, Mr. Vest sand, was the real remedy, Any other remedy (without an amend, and that, Mr. Vest sand, who were enabled to work their insquitons purposes under the buttress afforded by the tariff law.

The debate drifted into a discussion of the effect of high duties upon the existions and making suggestions in opposition to Mr. Vest's contention. The latter insisted upon close connection between trusts and high duties, and dilustrated the point by an anecdote of a suspicious old gentieman, who once invested twenty-five cents in order to see the Siames twins, and who, having examined the ligament which bound them together, and noted in that ligament the pulsation that indicated animal life to the fulless extent, said to them: "Still suspicious, Now, boys, tell the truth; are you brothers?" And so in spite of the demonstration of the connection, the question was gravely asked: Was a three any connection between the trusts and a high-protective tariff.
